Anti-wrinkle eye creams

Environ Ionzyme C-Quence Eye Gel

This has been described as an "effective alternative to Botox" as it contains the latest cosmetic technology alongside the muscle relaxing properties of Argireline. The light gel formula feels refreshing on application and skin began to feel smoother and healthier after a few weeks.

Costs £39.95

Clarins Super Restorative Total Eye Concentrate

This fresh-smelling cream claims to 'repair deep-set wrinkles' which seems a little far-fetched but eye areas felt noticeably firmer after just a couple of weeks. The cream feels soft and light when it is applied and also helps tone down puffiness and dark circles.

Dr Denese Instant Wrinkle Press

Most other wrinkle creams require about two weeks before effects are noticeable. However, Instant Wrinkle Press has an immediate freezing effect, relaxing the muscles that generally cause wrinkles. The sticky texture and dipical smell were well worth it and immediate results were noticed – skin was noticeably tighter.

Costs £44.95 (0870 1900 003,

N.V. Perricone MD Cosmeceuticals Alpha Lipoic Acid Eye Area Therapy

Dr Perricone is adored by many celebrities so it's been on the No. 1 wish list for ages. Resembling a bottle of medicine, the cream was instantly soothing to tired eyes. After a couple of weeks the eye area was visibly more youthful and skin far more taut. Hooray!

Costs £56
